DESCRIPTION
As soon as he engages himself on the path of reflection following the question that is posed onto him on the subject of his birth, Baby Grandad Bob feels good that all the gods of all the heavens are not all happy. Each time that he starts thinking aloud, they watch anxiously...Waiting for a response of Baby Grandad Bob, the gods start playing chess between themselves. But they jump up each time Baby Grandad Bob was about to speak and each time they remember where they had left off in the game. Becoming more and more upset with each other and bluntly, they attacked one another. When they are all dead, Baby Grandad Bob is finally able to give his answer.
