DESCRIPTION
Clayton Green, a young and ambitious accounting clerk, is told by his parents one morning that he is sick and must return to bed until he recovers. Clayton feels fine, but he soon learns to see things from his parent's point of view when the invisible infection begins to spread, threatening the entire home. When his parents try to convince his little sister of her own invisible infection, Clayton realizes that the time has come to leave home, and take his sister with him.
