DESCRIPTION
The short film opens with a memory of a whole day drinking matés with the poet's grandmother. The latter speaks to her mother and her grandmother, she asks them to guide her with their vision of the world because otherwise she cannot really explain where she comes from. “Ko pyhare” means “tonight” in Guaraní. "Para siempre" means "forever" in Spanish. This mixture between Guaraní and Spanish is representative of the loss of Guaraní identity through the old and young generations.
