DESCRIPTION

In 1898, Émile Zola published a letter addressed to the President of the French Republic defending Captain Dreyfus who was unjustly imprisoned by the army when he denounced State anti-semitism. The Dreyfus affair precipitated an important political and ideological crisis that later divided the French population. A century later, at the initiative of PRIM, 20 artists each produced a short video of no longer than 1 minute in which they expressed their indignation about a related subject of their choice.
