DESCRIPTION

Through collective discussions and dramatic re-enactments, students of various racial groups : Native Indians, Blacks, Asians and Whites, speak out on the racism they endure on a daily basis. Focusing primarily on the educational system, this video suggests that schools, rather than helping overcome racism, actually reinforce it. As part of a project organized to combat the problem, students, teachers and community workers contribute their experiences and their talents as one way to do something. The project was coordinated by the Third Avenue Resource Centre, Montréal, in collaboration with Vidéographe.
