

THEY RISE, THESE SPONGE FORTRESSES

DIRECTOR

Guillaume Vallée

DURATION

0:07

YEAR

2022

ORIGINAL LANGUAGE

French

CATEGORY

Experimental

DESCRIPTION

The cameraless animated short "they rise, these sponge fortresses" is made from a 35 mm trailer of the feature film "Water Lilies" (2007) by Céline Sciamma. Experimental filmmaker Guillaume Vallée explores and questions his sensory memory as a teenager, partially lost. This process of resuscitating buried experiences and forgotten memories is carried by the materiality of 35 mm film, the nature of the images filmed and the interventions of the filmmaker painting and scratching the film emulsion directly. In this reverse journey, the memory-images, the affects reveal their plasticity, their imperfections, their chaos, their sensuality and their significance. The soundtrack is by Stephanie Castonguay and the texts by author Gabrielle Boulianne-Tremblay.

IMAGE FORMAT

16:9

SOUND

Stereo

SHOOTING FORMAT

35 mm

KEYWORDS

mémoire sensorielle, pellicule, matérialité, sensory memory, film, materiality